CLASS PLAYS ARE WELL RECEIVED

CLASS OF '19 PRESENTED THEIR DRAMATIC PRODUCTIONS TO GOOD CROWD

MILLER GOOD DIRECTOR

"The Ring" and "The Rose" Plays of the Elizabethian Age—"A Woman's a Woman For A' That," American Comedy.

More than 500 people attended the class plays of the Class of '19 in the auditorium of the State Teachers College last night. Three one act plays were presented and were well received. The players' portrayal of their parts was all that could be asked showing the able direction of Prof. Harry Miller who had charge of the rehearsals. Two of the plays had the atmosphere of the days of Elizabeth and Shakespeare while the other was a typical American comedy of the present day.

The first play presented was "The Ring," an old English drama. The plot of the play centered around the loss of a ring and the search for it. Katherine Dodsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dodsley, and in love with Richard Powell loses a ring which her lover has given her. Mr. Peter Dodsley is away at the theater at the time of the discovery of the loss. Mrs. Hannah Dodsley immediately institutes a search, impressing her two servants into service in that direction. She has them sieze as suspects an Egyptian, a gypsy and a tinker but the ring can not be found. Then Robin Woodcock, a player of woman's parts, claims to have it and brings the wrath of Richard Powell upon his head. While he and Richard are fighting, Peter Dodsley cmes home, inquires the cause of the trouble and then produces the ring, stating that he had taken the ring to use in a play which he had appeared that afternoon.

"A Woman's a Woman For A' That" was next presented. This is the story of how a woman doctor is brought to grief. Mrs. Stymie at her summer cottage in a small town is forced to call a doctor to attend to her son who has an affliction of the eyes. There is only one doctor, a woman, and a veterinarian in the town. The woman doctor, Dr. Bulfwell, calls to see the patient and diagnosis the case and says that an operation is necessary. She calls a nurse and makes ready for the operation while the sorely distressed mother is torn between doubts of the ability of the woman doctor and

JENKINS GIVES CLASS ADDRESS

K. C. NEWSPAPER MAN AND MINISTER IN S. T. C. COMMENCEMENT TALK

PRAISES SOLDIER SPIRIT

Prominent Journalist Tells of American Doughboys in Billet, Trench and Hospital—Pres. Richardson Presents Diplomas.

Before a crowd which fairly packed the spacious auditorium of the State Teachers College this morning, Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, of Kansas City, editor of the Kansas City Post and pastor of the Linwood Boulevard Christian church, and recently returned from a few years abroad as a war correspondent, delivered the commencement day address to the graduating class of the college.

Dr. Jenkins spoke in the plain uneffected manner which has gained for him a nation wide reputation and the text of his address dealt principally along patriotic lines and the work which the American boys have accomplished in France.

Beginning with a short introductory speech of welcome and congratulation to the graduates before him, Dr. Jenkins, then launched into the real subject of his address, "the Life of the American Doughboy in France."

He first spoke of the soldier in the billets, "A billet" said the speaker, "may be anything from a barn full of straw to a mansion," but, "he added" the American soldier was not fond of the French billets—he would rather sleep out in his pup tent with only ground for a floor than in a billet which was previously occupied by hundreds of soldiers. He then explained why the Americans were adverse to the billets, because of the poor sanitary conditions and the fact that the "cooties" are almost impossible to get rid of in such places.

The humorous strain of Dr. Jenkin's speech was brought out at this point when he told of the recent contest conducted by the Kansas City Post on "What Should Be Done With the Kaiser." Dr. Jenkins stated that he was over in France at the time of this contest and that he arrived back too late to send in an answer, mut that his suggestion for the greatest punishment would be to place the Kaiser and the Crown Prince in a small room with all the cooties in the world. "Then let each cootie do his cootie duty" said the Doctor," and the Kaiser would have all the punishment that was coming to him."

Dr. Jenkins then took his audience from the billets to the trenches, and described to them graphically the way the boys acted there. He himself during his period as a press correspondent at the front was on the firing line many times, and spoke from actual experience of the conditions as they are there. "There is one instance that especially impressed on my mind," he said " and that was in regard to an old medical officer, who although he was away above the age limit managed to get through and make his way up to the front. The boys, by way of a little joke, sent the old man a note telling him that he would be expected to go 'over the top' the following morning. The old officer took off his official insignia and was ready to go when he was informed that it was a joke and that he would not be required to go. The old man was so mad that it was necessary to really let him go on the next charge toward the enemy lines" Dr. Jenkins explained that this is the spirit that was shown by the boys throughout the war on all the fronts and that men of all types and nationalities in the American army seemed to have the same Yankee spirit of courage, bravery and loyalty to country, even though this country was in many instances only their adopted home.

As the final leg of the journey described by Dr. Jenkins, he took the audience through the hospitals. He described the innumerable cases of men who had been hopelessly wounded in battle, and the spirit of courage which held the boys up, when they looked into the very eyes of death.

Near the close of his speech Dr. Jenkins spoke of the treachery of the Germans, and gave as an example the recent act of scuttling their own ships to keep them from falling into the hands of the Allies. "The Hun will continually attempt to evade the terms of the peace treaty," he said " and her son's condition. The son is really playing sick in order to escape attending a garden party with his mother. The doctor explains that the operation has to do with the placing of leaches on the eyes of the patient. She instructs the nurse how this is to be done while she directs the operation. The nurses can not touch the leaches or have anything to do with them and the doctor, of course, is in the same predicament but trys to bluff her way out of it by insisting that the nurse must do her duty. The nurse, however, refuses and so the doctor attempts the handling of the leaches but drops one on the floor and creates a great furore in the house in which the doctor and the nurse are as excited as anyone. The veterinarian who is going by the house is called in to save the day and the saying that "A Woman's a Woman For A' That" is proven true.

The last play presented was "The Rose." This was a beautiful lve story in which Sir Richard whom the queen loves, loves another Lady Sylvia. Sir Richard is ordered to leave the country by the queen. He comes to say goodbye to Lady Sylvia who entreats him to stay but he says that he can not disobey the orders of the queen. He asks that she give him something to remember her by and she gives him a rose, symbolic of love, while a page sings a song about the rose.

THE WHEAT STEM MAGGOT

R. A. Ellerman Sends in Letter From State University, Describing the Insect and the Remedy.

R. A. Ellerman of Ravenwood, sends the following letter to the Democrat-Forum, in which an explanation is given of the wheat stem maggot, and the remedy prescribed by Prof. L. Haseman of the state university. The letter:

Mr. R. A. Ellerman,
Ravenwood, Mo.,

Dear Sir—Replying to your letter of the 11th I would say that the worm which causes the blight of wheat and ryeheads similar to the samples which you sent is known as the wheat stem maggot. It apparently has three broods a year, a midsummer brood in grass a fall brood in the winter wheat passing the winter in the maggot stage and the early summer brood which blights the wheat eads. It is a small fly half the size of the house fly and looks something like it. The maggot does the feeding and the damage. To prevent the trouble probably the delay of wheat sowing in the fall until the safe seeding date for Hessian Fly will help you. Supplement this with the destruction of straw or at least the threshing of the wheat as early in the summer as possible will usually put and end to the pest. It is much worse some seasons than others and another year it may not be very bad at all in your locality. It is not an easy pest to control when abundant but fortunately it is not with us in destructive numbers every year.

Yours very truly,
L. HASEMAN,
Entomologist.

"HELLO, GIVE ME THE U. S."

German Telephone Exhibited at the Price-McNeal Store.

A German telephone, perhaps the identical one which Kaiser Bill used when he called his highest "monkey-monk" to go out and bring in a few regiments of Americans, was received the other day by John P. Price from his son, Clun, with the aerial photography forces in France. The instrument is of the sort we are familiar with in the movies where the villian grasps up a sort of triangle, with one end to his ear and speaks into a small tin pan arrangement at the other end. Mr. Price has the instrument rigged up so it can be used. Clun landed in the U. S. yesterday after a year's service aborad.

the Allies will have to be continually on their guard to force him to live up to them. The League of Nations, will be the answer to this problem."

In his personal talk to the graduates the speaker, said that the aspiration or goal toward which theye were to strive in life was the most important thing, "What a man wants to be, he most usually will be " he said "and a high upright and useful life is the result of continual striving toward such."

The commencement exercises were opened with a piano selection by Miss Mae Rust, during which the graduates marched to their places in the auditorium. Following the graduates, the service men from the College came into the auditorium in a body.

President Ira Richardson delivered a short memorial address, in which he spoke of the men who entered the service from the College, and during his talk named five boys who made the supreme sacrifice. These were: David C. Leavel, Claude Wood, Jesse McCracken, who were killed on the battle field and Verne Heflin and Poe Ewing who died of disease. These men are to be honored with gold stars on the permanent flag of the College.

In response to the address by President Richardson, W. A. Blagg, president of the Board of Regents of the institution made a short adress in which he carried out the thought of honor to the men who entered the service of their country.

Following the address by Dr. Jenkins the awarding of the degrees and the presentation of the diplomas was made by President Richardson.

SAVANNAH MAN GIVES SCHOOL

Dr. Perry Nicholas Gives $2,400 for Salary Increase to Teachers.

Dr. Perry Nichols, founder and head of the Doctor Nichols Sanatorium, Savannah, Mo., has given a 20 per cent salary increase to Savannah teachers for the coming year. Seventeen teachers, including the high school and the grades, are affected by the increase. The increase totals $2,400. Checks covering the amount of the gift have been deposited, and the teachers will receive their proportionate share of the increase each month in addition to the regular salaries paid by the board of education. Doctor Nichols also gave $1,000 to the school gymnasium, which is to be built during vacation months.

Savannah has long prided itself on being a school town. Having the only first class high school in Andrew County, practically one-half of the enrollment is nonresidents. The school authorities are endeavoring to work out a standard high school which will meet the requirements of the new educational era. The last few years have been added a complete commercial department, teacher training, household arts, manual training and a course in practical public speaking. The coming year courses will be added in vocational agriculture, community civics, vocations, physical training and journalism.

The public library, on the school grounds, and under the control and supervision of the board of education, has a $15,000 endowment fund from Ed V. Price of Chicago. Giving especial attention to the school needs, the library forms one of the school's strongest features.

Savannah, in common with many other Missouri towns, found herself helpless in the matter of teachers' salaries. In order to have superior teachers she has gone beyond the average in salaries, but the legal tax limitations prevent such increases as are demanded by the changed economic conditions. Thus the board was unable to further increase salaries, and for that reason threatened the loss of some of the strongest teachers, and the consequent check to the progress of the schools.

Doctor Nichols has resided in Savannah since 1912 at which time he transferred his institution from Hot Springs S. D., in order to obtain a more central location. Since that time he has been closely identified with al movements for the beterment of the community.

Baby's Health

Depends on his comport. Dr. Wiley, the recognized authority on food and health, discussing in Good Housekeeping the means of reducing infant mortality, said:

"—the fan is an excellent apparatus for mitigating the suffering from heat. Air in motion carries away rapidly from the body the heat, that is absorbed or is radiated into it. The current from the fan should be over the infant or at one side—not directly on it."

Don't limit your fan equipment to nursery or bedroom—have an Emerson fan in every room.

The fan uses very little electricity, and is one of the most economical ways of getting rid of the heat. The Emerson fan is fully guaranteed.

The Home of Her Dreams

You may not be thinking of building just now—but you will some time, and if you expect to build within the next few years, it will pay you to look into the building and lumber situation RIGHT NOW.

Without stopping to think, many people predicted lower prices as soon as the war was over, but since we have had time to investigate we BELIEVE that prices WON'T DROP for several years because there are really more reasons for high prices now than there was when the war was going on.

During the war, towns, farm houses, forests—much of the timber and lumber of the old country was being destroyed. There was no building going on over there and little here, owing to war restrictions on labor. But now, and for several years to come the reconstruction period will mean great building activity.

The world's timber is getting scarce, because it is being cut and used faster than it grows. For that reason it is mighty likely to be hard to get. Besides that, labor is high priced. For that reason there is no prospect of prices of lumber going down, and there is considerable liklihood of their going up.

BUT DO WE WANT LOWER PRICES? High wages paid in the big cities is what makes pork and provisions high, and high prices is what makes prosperity for us in this neck of the woods. We can better afford to pay the price of lumber or anything else now than we could if produce prices went down—which they will do when other things drop.

You won't save anything by putting off building—any more than you could by putting off anything else—and you know that putting off things never did pay, did it?

But you might lose by putting it off. If it is a home you want you are sure to lose some of its comforts and the use of it if you put off building it. And you stand a chance of losing money besides.

You can get lumber now and get it at a reasonable price when other things are considered, and if you are thinking of building at all you should make some investigations of market conditions.

We are here to give you all the information we are able to get, and to furnish building plans, estimates and help you in any way possible.

Commercial Club Committee Announces That Lateness of Farm Season Is Cause of Postponement.

Owing to the fact that the farmers of Nodaway county will be very busy during the next two months because of the late agricultural season in Nodaway county, the entertainment committee of the Commercial Club decided at the meeting last night to postpone the planned celebration for the returned service men of the county until later in the summer or early fall.

CLASS PLAYS ARE WELL RECEIVED

MILLER GOOD DIRECTOR

"The Ring" and "The Rose" Plays of the Elizabethian Age—"A Woman's a Woman For A' That," American Comedy.

More than 500 people attended the class plays of the Class of '19 in the auditorium of the State Teachers College last night. Three one act plays were presented and were well received. The players' portrayal of their parts was all that could be asked showing the able direction of Prof. Harry Miller who had charge of the rehearsals. Two of the plays had the atmosphere of the days of Elizabeth and Shakespeare while the other was a typical American comedy of the present day.

The first play presented was "The Ring," an old English drama. The plot of the play centered around the loss of a ring and the search for it. Katherine Dodsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dodsley, and in love with Richard Powell loses a ring which her lover has given her. Mr. Peter Dodsley is away at the theater at the time of the discovery of the loss. Mrs. Hannah Dodsley immediately institutes a search, impressing her two servants into service in that direction. She has them sieze as suspects an Egyptian, a gypsy and a tinker but the ring can not be found. Then Robin Woodcock, a player of woman's parts, claims to have it and brings the wrath of Richard Powell upon his head. While he and Richard are fighting, Peter Dodsley cmes home, inquires the cause of the trouble and then produces the ring, stating that he had taken the ring to use in a play in which he had appeared that afternoon.

"A Woman's a Woman For A' That," was next presented. This is the story of how a woman doctor is brought to grief. Mrs. Stymie at her summer cottage in a small town is forced to call a doctor to attend to her son who has an affliction of the eyes. There is only one doctor, a woman, and a veterinarian in the town. The woman doctor, Dr. Bulfwell, calls to see the patient and diagnosis the case and says that an operation is necessary. She calls a nurse and makes ready for the operation while the sorely distressed mother is torn between doubts of the ability of the woman doctor and

K. C. NEWSPAPER MAN AND MINISTER IN S. T. C. COMMENCEMENT TALK

PRAISES SOLDIER SPIRIT

Prominent Journalist Tells of American Doughboys in Billet, Trench and Hospital—Pres. Richardson Presents Diplomas.

Before a crowd which fairly packed the spacious auditorium of the State Teachers College this morning, Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, of Kansas City, editor of the Kansas City Post and pastor of the Linwood Boulevard Christian church, and recently returned from a few years abroad as a war correspondent, delivered the commencement day address to the graduating class of the college.

Dr. Jenkins spoke in the plain uneffected manner which has gained for him a nation wide reputation and the text of his address dealt principally along patriotic lines and the work which the American boys have accomplished in France.

Beginning with a short introductory speech of welcome and congratulation to the graduates before him, Dr. Jenkins, then launched into the real subject of his address, "the Life of the American Doughboy in France."

He first spoke of the soldier in the billets, "A billet" said the speaker, "may be anything from a barn full of straw to a mansion," but, "he added" the American soldier was not fond of the French billets—he would rather sleep out in his pup tent with only ground for a floor than in a billet which was previously occupied by hundreds of soldiers. He then explained why the Americans were adverse to the billets, because of the poor sanitary conditions and the fact that the "cooties" are almost impossible to get rid of in such places.

The humorous strain of Dr. Jenkin's speech was brought out at this point when he told of the recent contest conducted by the Kansas City Post on "What Should Be Done With the Kaiser." Dr. Jenkins stated that he was over in France at the time of this contest and that he arrived back too late to send in an answer, mut that his suggestion for the greatest punishment would be to place the Kaiser and the Crown Prince in a small room with all the cooties in the world. "Then let each cootie do his cootie duty" said the Doctor," and the Kaiser would have all the punishment that was coming to him."

Dr. Jenkins then took his audience from the billets to the trenches, and described to them graphically the way the boys acted there. He himself during his period as a press correspondent at the front was on the firing line many times, and spoke from actual experience of the conditions as they are there. "There is one instance that especially impressed on my mind," he said " and that was in regard to an old medical officer, who although he was away above the age limit managed to get through and make his way up to the front. The boys, by way of a little joke, sent the old man a note telling him that he would be expected to go 'over the top' the following morning. The old officer took off his official insignia and was ready to go when he was informed that it was a joke and that he would not be required to go. The old man was so mad that it was necessary to really let him go on the next charge toward the enemy lines" Dr. Jenkins explained that this is the spirit that was shown by the boys throughout the war on all the fronts and that men of all types and nationalities in the American army seemed to have the same Yankee spirit of courage, bravery and loyalty to country, even though this country was in many instances only their adopted home.

As the final leg of the journey described by Dr. Jenkins, he took the audience through the hospitals. He described the innumerable cases of men who had been hopelessly wounded in battle, and the spirit of courage which held the boys up, when they looked into the very eyes of death.

Near the close of his speech Dr. Jenkins spoke of the treachery of the Germans, and gave as an example the recent act of scuttling their own ships to keep them from falling into the hands of the Allies. "The Hun will continually attempt to evade the terms of the peace treaty," he said " and her son's condition. The son is really playing sick in order to escape attending a garden party with his mother. The doctor explains that the operation has to do with the placing of leaches on the eyes of the patient. She instructs the nurse how this is to be done while she directs the operation. The nurses can not touch the leaches or have anything to do with them and the doctor, of course, is in the same predicament but trys to bluff her way out of it by insisting that the nurse must do her duty. The nurse, however, refuses and so the doctor attempts the handling of the leaches but drops one on the floor and creates a great furore in the house in which the doctor and the nurse are as excited as anyone. The veterinarian who is going by the house is called in to save the day and the saying that "A Woman's a Woman For A' That" is proven true.

The last play presented was "The Rose." This was a beautiful lve story in which Sir Richard whom the queen loves, loves another Lady Sylvia. Sir Richard is ordered to leave the country by the queen. He comes to say goodbye to Lady Sylvia who entreats him to stay but he says that he can not disobey the orders of the queen. He asks that she give him something to remember her by and she gives him a rose, symbolic of love, while a page sings a song about the rose.

THE WHEAT STEM MAGGOT

R. A. Ellerman Sends in Letter From State University, Describing the Insect and the Remedy.

R. A. Ellerman of Ravenwood, sends the following letter to the Democrat-Forum, in which an explanation is given of the wheat stem maggot, and the remedy prescribed by Prof. L. Haseman of the state university. The letter:

Mr. R. A. Ellerman,
Ravenwood, Mo.,

Dear Sir—Replying to your letter of the 11th I would say that the worm which causes the blight of wheat and ryeheads similar to the samples which you sent is known as the wheat stem maggot. It apparently has three broods a year, a midsummer brood in grass a fall brood in the winter wheat passing the winter in the maggot stage and the early summer brood which blights the wheat eads. It is a small fly half the size of the house fly and looks something like it. The maggot does the feeding and the damage. To prevent the trouble probably the delay of wheat sowing in the fall until the safe seeding date for Hessian Fly will help you. Supplement this with the destruction of straw or at least the threshing of the wheat as early in the summer as possible will usually put and end to the pest. It is much worse some seasons than others and another year it may not be very bad at all in your locality. It is not an easy pest to control when abundant but fortunately it is not with us in destructive numbers every year.

Yours very truly,
L. HASEMAN,
Entomologist.

"HELLO, GIVE ME THE U. S."

German Telephone Exhibited at the Price-McNeal Store.

A German telephone, perhaps the identical one which Kaiser Bill used when he called his highest "monkey-monk" to go out and bring in a few regiments of Americans, was received the other day by John P. Price from his son, Clun, with the aerial photography forces in France. The instrument is of the sort we are familiar with in the movies where the villian grasps up a sort of triangle, with one end to his ear and speaks into a small tin pan arrangement at the other end. Mr. Price has the instrument rigged up so it can be used. Clun landed in the U. S. yesterday after a year's service aborad.

JENKINS GIVES ADDRESS

the Allies will have to be continually on their guard to force him to live up to them. The League of Nations, will be the answer to this problem."

In his personal talk to the graduates the speaker, said that the aspiration or goal toward which theye were to strive in life was the most important thing, "What a man wants to be, he most usually will be" he said "and a high upright and useful life is the result of continual striving toward such."

The commencement exercises were opened with a piano selection by Miss Mae Rust, during which the graduates marched to their places in the auditorium. Following the graduates, the service men from the College came into the auditorium in a body.

President Ira Richardson delivered a short memorial address, in which he spoke of the men who entered the service from the College, and during his talk named five boys who made the supreme sacrifice. These were: David C. Leavel, Claude Wood, Jesse McCracken, who were killed on the battle field and Verne Heflin and Poe Ewing who died of disease. These men are to be honored with gold stars on the permanent flag of the College.

In response to the address by President Richardson, W. A. Blagg, president of the Board of Regents of the institution made a short adress in which he carried out the thought of honor to the men who entered the service of their country.

Following the address by Dr. Jenkins the awarding of the degrees and the presentation of the diplomas was made by President Richardson.

SAVANNAH MAN GIVES SCHOOL

Dr. Perry Nicholas Gives $2,400 for Salary Increase to Teachers.

Dr. Perry Nichols, founder and head of the Doctor Nichols Sanatorium, Savannah, Mo., has given a 20 per cent salary increase to Savannah teachers for the coming year. Seventeen teachers, including the high school and the grades, are affected by the increase. The increase totals $2,400. Checks covering the amount of the gift have been deposited, and the teachers will receive their proportionate share of the increase each month in addition to the regular salaries paid by the board of education. Doctor Nichols also gave $1,000 to the school gymnasium, which is to be built during vacation months.

Savannah has long prided itself on being a school town. Having the only first class high school in Andrew County, practically one-half of the enrollment is nonresidents. The school authorities are endeavoring to work out a standard high school which will meet the requirements of the new educational era. The last few years have been added a complete commercial department, teacher training, household arts, manual training and a course in practical public speaking. The coming year courses will be added in vocational agriculture, community civics, vocations, physical training and journalism.

The public library, on the school grounds, and under the control and supervision of the board of education, has a $15,000 endowment fund from Ed V. Price of Chicago. Giving especial attention to the school needs, the library forms one of the school's strongest features.

Savannah, in common with many other Missouri towns, found herself helpless in the matter of teachers' salaries. In order to have superior teachers she has gone beyond the average in salaries, but the legal tax limitations prevent such increases as are demanded by the changed economic conditions. Thus the board was unable to further increase salaries, and for that reason threatened the loss of some of the strongest teachers, and the consequent check to the progress of the schools.

Doctor Nichols has resided in Savannah since 1912 at which time he transferred his institution from Hot Springs S. D., in order to obtain a more central location. Since that time he has been closely identified with al movements for the beterment of the community.

Baby's Health

Depends on his comport. Dr. Wiley, the recognized authority on food and health, discussing in Good Housekeeping the means of reducing infant mortality, said:

"—the fan is an excellent apparatus for mitigating the suffering from heat. Air in motion carries away rapidly from the body the heat, that is absorbed or is radiated into it. The current from the fan should be over the infant or at one side—not directly on it."

Don't limit your fan equipment to nursery or bedroom—have an Emerson fan in every room.

The fan uses very little electricity, and is one of the most economical ways of getting rid of the heat. The Emerson fan is fully guaranteed.

The Home of Her Dreams

You may not be thinking of building just now—but you will some time, and if you expect to build within the next few years, it will pay you to look into the building and lumber situation RIGHT NOW.

Without stopping to think, many people predicted lower prices as soon as the war was over, but since we have had time to investigate we BELIEVE that prices WON'T DROP for several years because there are really more reasons for high prices now than there was when the war was going on.

During the war, towns, farm houses, forests—much of the timber and lumber of the old country was being destroyed. There was no building going on over there and little here, owing to war restrictions on labor. But now, and for several years to come the reconstruction period will mean great building activity.

The world's timber is getting scarce, because it is being cut and used faster than it grows. For that reason it is mighty likely to be hard to get. Besides that, labor is high priced. For that reason there is no prospect of prices of lumber going down, and there is considerable liklihood of their going up.

BUT DO WE WANT LOWER PRICES? High wages paid in the big cities is what makes pork and provisions high, and high prices is what makes prosperity for us in this neck of the woods. We can better afford to pay the price of lumber or anything else now than we could if produce prices went down—which they will do when other things drop.

You won't save anything by putting off building—any more than you could by putting off anything else—and you know that putting off things never did pay, did it?

But you might lose by putting it off. If it is a home you want you are sure to lose some of its comforts and the use of it if you put off building it. And you stand a chance of losing money besides.

You can get lumber now and get it at a reasonable price when other things are considered, and if you are thinking of building at all you should make some investigations of market conditions.

We are here to give you all the information we are able to get, and to furnish building plans, estimates and help you in any way possible.
